

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Companies like Sinclair use the public airwaves free of charge and are obligated by law to serve the public interest.

The Federal Communications Commission should use its power to stop Sinclair from airing the anti-Kerry documentary.

If the FCC does not stop Sinclair from airing that documentary, it should require Sinclair to provide equal time for such anti-Bush documentaries as "Fahrenheit 9/11" or the pro-Kerry program "Going Upriver."
